

I'm interested in Completing the TEACH Core Course and also want to obtain the Certified Tobacco Educator (CTE) credential

I'm not sure which program is better for me.

You don't have to choose! In order to complete the CTE certification, you have to complete a comprehensive tobacco cessation education training program for healthcare professionals. The TEACH project will provide the accredited training to help you achieve the required competencies to deliver evidence-based tobacco cessation. Once you have completed TEACH, you can decide if you would like to obtain the CTE designation. TEACH will also be offering the Health Education Course, allowing participants to complete all required competencies through one program.

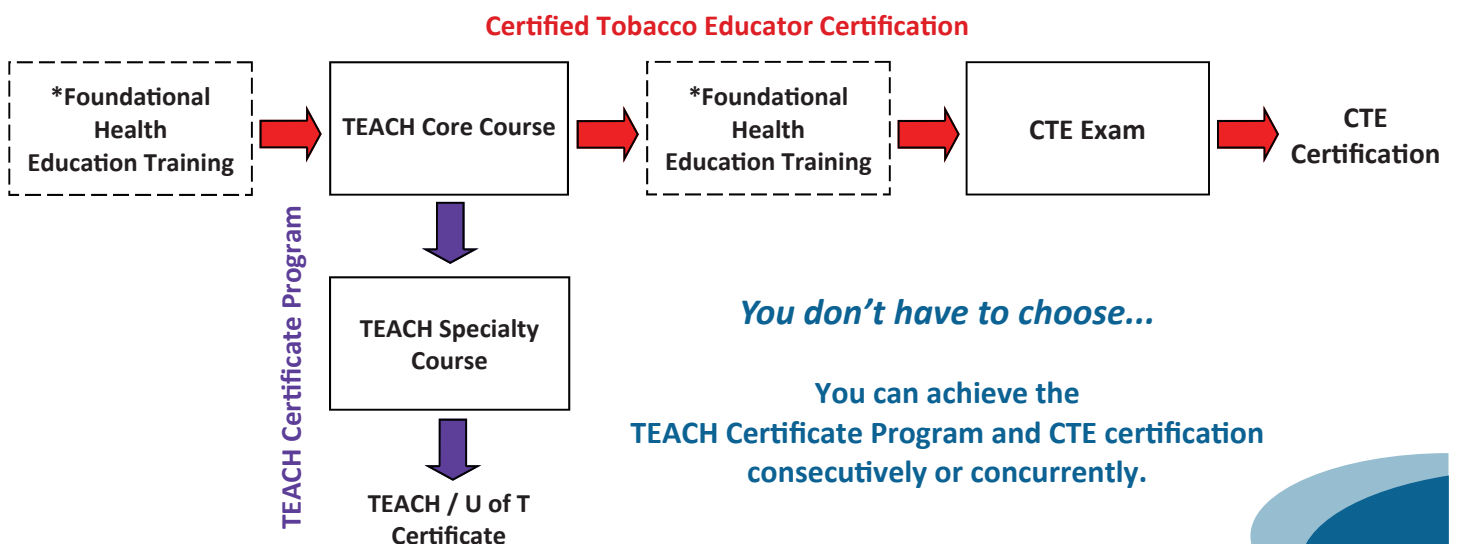

What's the advantage of taking TEACH training versus other trainings in tobacco cessation?

There are several advantages to taking the TEACH training.

- TEACH is the benchmark tobacco training program in Canada.
- TEACH is currently funded by the Ministry of Health and Long-term Care, Smoke-free Ontario Branch. This subsidized funding allows us to offer this program at a very low cost.
- TEACH is the only Canadian program accredited by the Association for the Treatment of Tobacco Use and Dependence (ATTUD).
- The TEACH Core Course is offered in person and online several times per year. TEACH faculty members are recognized experts in tobacco cessation.
- The TEACH Project provides participants with current, evidence-based curriculum in tobacco cessation.
- TEACH also provides a wealth of continuing education opportunities including Specialty Courses, webinars, etc.

The TEACH Project will begin offering the Foundational Health Education program in 2015.

What are my next steps?

 Although it is highly recommended to complete the Foundational Health Education Training prior to the TEACH Core Course, the Foundational Health Education Training may be completed after the TEACH Core Course. This policy is subject to change.*
